NYC'S GARBAGE

HISTORY

Part of Waring's restructuring process included enforcing a strict dress code that required sanitation workers to wear all-white uniforms, which coined the nickname the "White Wings." When Colonel George Waring was appointed to be the Commissioner of the Department of Street Cleaning in 1895, he molded the department into a quasi-military style structure that DSNY still uses today. Enabling it to effectively tackle the city's sanitation crisis and pervasive corruption.
